I am a Computer Engineer who has used both Microsoft and Linux operating systems. I feel more stringent limitations should be placed upon Microsoft. I feel the current proposed settlement still gives Microsoft too much room to exercise their overwhelming power. It seems silly to me that the U.S. Department of Justice would so willingly accept any proposal generated by Microsoft. There appear to be many loop holes within the settlement that will only continue to allow Microsoft to crush competition. I would feel more comfortable with a settlement that had input from experts with a technological background, including Microsoft competitors.

Sincerely,

Edward Brush
